DID KEEPER DUGAN HELP?

HELD IN $2,500 BAIL FOR FORGING-THOSE WORKHOUSE DISCHARGES.

A Crowd at the Hearing at Jefferson Market Court To-Day-Huff and Reilly Give Their Testimony - Dugan Denies the Charge and Says It Is an Attempt at Blackmail-Another Arrest Expected.

The case of Keeper Ignatius Dugan, of the Jefferson Market Prison, who was arrested yesterday charged with complicity in securing the liberty of prisoners from Blackwell's Island by means of discharge papers, to which the Judge's name was forged, was the principal topic of conversation in the Ninth Ward to-day.

Long before 9 o'clock the court-room at Jefferson Market was crowded with friends of the keeper, and the spectators waited patiently for the case to be called.

About 10 o'clock Detective Sergt, McCauley, of Inspector Byrnes's staff, arrived with Dugan, and a few minutes later the other prisoners, Joseph Reilly and Joseph Huff, were brought in. Dugan exhibited the greatest coolness and was inclined to laugh at the charges. To an Evening World reporter he said:

"I am perfectly satisfied that the Court will not believe these ducks. My character has always been good and theirs hasn't. I have never furnished any discharge papers to anyone, and I am so confident of being discharged that I have not even retained a lawyer. In my opinion this is simply a scheme on the part of these fellows to blackmail me."

mail me."

Judge Ford was telegraphed for and he arrived about 10. 30 this morning from Babylon, L. I. Huff and Reilly were taken into one of the private examination rooms, where the complaint against Dugan was made out.

The crook who so eleverly forged Justice Ford's signature and Wilson, who wanted to secure the release of Edna Clark, will probably be arrested to-day.

The complaint was drawn up on the testimony of Judge Ford, and in it Commissioner Porter charges Dugan and McEntee, the crook who is said to have done the artistic part of the work, with forgery in the second degree.

part of the work, with forgery in the second degree.

Before Judge Power Dugan waived examination, and was held in $2,500 buil for a hearing next Wednesday. Judge Ford thought that a small sum, but the presiding magistrate declined to make it heavier.

Dugan said he could prove conclusively that he was innocent when the proper moment arrived. Reilly was remanded to the House of Detention.

The forged release upon which Edna Clark was allowed to leave Blackwell's Island, is a claver peee fwr. Judge Ford's signature having been almost perfectly immuted.

Dugan expects to be released on bail to-day.

recently organized, benefited last evening by an entertainment, tendered them by their many friends at the seaside, at Charles Feltman's Ocean Pavilion. Two thousand tickets had been sold, and the summer garden adjoining the pasold, and the summer garden adjoining the pa-villon, where the concert was held, was thronged, A hoat of volunteers, representing many well-known stars of the variety stage, tencered their services, including Miss Minne Lee, John Toole, Fred C. Bryant, Frank Sneridan, John Hart, Rice and Barton, the McShane Brothers, Harvey Thomp-son, Miss Lottle Reeves, Prof. Philip Perry and others. The feature of the evening, however, was the song orill of "Perry's Glass Pavillon Fire Brigade, No. 5," performed by fitteen ladies and gentiesien clad in fire costume. Edward Kunn proved an efficient stage manager. Mr. Feltman gave the use of his hall, and several hundred dol-lars was realized for the local department.

Pound Master Blake's Scheme. The Long Island City Pound at Blissville was raided late yesterday afternoon and thirty-five milch cows were liberated. Pound Master Blake. earlier in the day, was held in $1,000 ball for the earlier in the day, was held in $1,000 ball for the action of the Grand Jury. Blake was appointed some time ago and has since caused a great deal of annoyance to cattle-owners. Mary Lenoon, Mary Lawlor and D. J. Chadsey charged Blake with extertion in demanding more money than the law allowed for impounded cows. T. P. Ryan, the owner of the thirty-five cows released yesterday, claims that three men employed by Blake forduly drove them off the pasture into the pound. By law the poundmaster is allowed to collect $1 for each head of cattle. It is claimed that the three men were naid a commission of $2 cents per head for all need of cattle. It is claimed that the three men were paid a commission of 25 cents per head for all cattle captured. John Ardiff, who was formerly the city poundmaster, is now in State Prison, serv-ing a sentence of seven years and six months for highway robbery.

Navy-Yard Notes.

The momitor Terror is to be towed into the Navy-Yard for repairs. Only the keel of the old New York remains to tell the tale of where some of Uncle Sam's money has gone.

Capt. Miller has suspended two laborers from the General Storekeeper's Department owing to a lack of funds. They are Messra. Furey and Booty, formerly of the Yards and Dooks Department, and they will probably be temporarily placed in another department.

Woman's Modesty.

TO-DAY IS MOIST, BUT WE ARE DOOMED TO HAVE SOME SWELTERERS.

These Lurid Skies and Sickly Sunsets Mean Business-Acting Signal Prophet Pursell Says a Wet and Het Wave is Nigh Which Will Make Us Groun-Sevent-Six Degrees of Humidity Already.

Lieut, Pursell is of the decided opinion that since Mr. Noah, some years ago, predicted a considerable spell of wet weather some months in advance, there had never existed a prophet who pretended to forecast whose prophicies were worth considering.

Lieut. Pursell is something of a weather prophet himself, and is in charge of Uncle Sam's signal station in this city. The foregoing expression of opinion concerning the Wigginses was occasioned by a request by THE EVENING WORLD reporter for a prediction covering the month of August.

Yellow, hazy skies, sickly sunrises and lurid sunsets have been the prevailing meteorological phenomena in this region for several days, and Lieut. Pursell, when his attention was called to this fact acknowledged that the appearance of these phenomena is usually followed by very hot weather, and these things may be a pressage of sweltering times to come.

He would not stake his reputation as prophet upon this prediction, however. This pleasant gentleman, who was loath to commit himself on a long-distance predic-tion, was right at home on a small order for a supply of weather warranted to keep, say forty-eight hours, without souring. With all the confidence in the world that he had a "dead straight tip," and apparently oblivious of the fact that he had failed to apoblivious of the fact that he had failed to approach anywhere near the father of weather prophets. Noah, in accuracy of prediction, the Lieutenant confided this information:

There is a general rain prevailing a lover the United States. It is reported from more than half of the signal stations. The nearest points to New York where it rained this morning were Washington and Albany.

The mercury in the thermometers mounted higher, and with every hitch it made the capacity for humidity become greater until the air was filled almost to repletion with dampness, greatly to the disgust of the poor humans who had to take a hot vapor bath willy nilly.

This is a hot, uncomfortable day, but wait until to-morrow! To-morrow it will be still warmer weather and more generally uncomfortable, and then, Lieut. Pursell says, after it (it should be spelled with a capital I) has provoked all the cuss words in the vocabulary a coolness will come over the city which will make life worth the living.

The highest temperature reported this morning is in New York and Pennsylvania, being an average of 76.

The awful fire in the Bowery already num bers nineteen victims, with the probability that at least two others will die before to-day is ended.

The scene at the Morgue is sickening and horrible.

On the slabs, ranged along both sides of the long building, are nineteen pine coffins each containing the burned and disfigured remains of a human being.

Outside, clustered about the entrance, have been all day a score of baggard-faced people, the friends or relatives of some of the victims of the holocaust,

Never was there a more complete fire-trap than the rear tenement at 197 Bowery.

The owner, Abraham Stern, a lawyer, pur chased the property recently. He rebuilt and refitted the building for a tenement. It was six stories high, and had a floor surface of 25 by 45 feet. On two sides it adjoined other buildings. There was a space 7 feet wide at the rear, and a four-story tenement in the rear of Krumm's Hall, Chrystie street, was there. There was an area about 10 feet wide in front between the trap and the White House restaurant on the Howery.

There was one staircase running up through the building, and in front were fire-escapes. In the rear there were escapes from the third story down. People above that floor and cut off from escape at the front had the alternative of leaping over the 7-foot area and down to the roof of the Chrystie street tenement. refitted the building for a tenement. How the fire started is still a mystery, but it is supposed that a gas or oil stove exploded and started the fire.

The building, like many another rear tenement, was crowded full of people.

In its narrow limits eighty people were working yesterday afternoon. More than half of them were women or girls, and all were Polish and Russian Jews.

were Polish and Russian Jews.

The fire spread so rapidly, and the smoke was so dense that the inmates became frantic and panic-stricken. Many leaped from windows and fire-escapes, but many others only sank down and awaited their fate.

For an hour after the fire the stores and hallways of the neighborhood were filled with burned and frenzied persons who had escaped from the fire with their lives.

The fire was subdued in a little more than an hour, and for three hours after the firemen worked in the ruins for the recovery of the bodies of the victims.

Fifteen bodies were found and removed to the Morgue last night.

Another hourt the face, arms and abdomen, Another young woman, who was horribly burned about the face, arms and abdomen, was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where she died in great agony this morning.

A few minutes after her death a sad-faced young man called, and upon seeing the remains burst into tears. He said she was his sweetheart and her name was Sarah Blum, and her brother, Sigismund Blum, was too ill from shock to come to the hospital. The woman was twenty-one years of age and lived with her brother at 22 Allen street.

MORE BODIES FOUND TO-DAY. This morning the firemen made another thorough search of the ruins. There is not a timber unburned in the building, and the firemen were obliged to turn over masses of debris of all sorts.

Their search resulted in the finding of three more bodies, one a woman, and the rangement of hours of labor made by Postmaster Pearson and his Superintendent. Mr. Richards.

Members of the association who were seen by an Evrning World reporter to-day claim that the Eight-Hour law is not enforced by the Postmaster, as shown in the reports from carriers in this journal. Additional testimony regarding the hours of labor will be forthcoming next week.

The charge made by Mr. Pearson that the present agitation is caused by a few chronic "growlers and grumblers," is refuted by the statement that the opinion is unanimous among the old carriers that the law is not properly carried out and the further charge made that the new men just appointed are the only ones who receive the benefit of the shorter hours. The men allege that Mr. Pearson's subordinates, Messrs. Richards and Conkling, the latter Assistant Superintendent, are responsible for the schedule just enforced, and that under it old employees are discriminated against.

To-morrow the Central Labor Union is expected to express itself on the subject, and District 49 is also reported as decidedly opposed to the Postmaster's policy, and will take action against it.

BLIGHTED IN LOVE AT 70.

A BREACH BETWEEN TWO VENERABLE

Joseph B. Bennett, of Seventy-three Tender Years, Sued by Miss Mary Griffiths, His Junior by Three Summers - How a Heart's Passion Flower Was Allowed

The friends of Dr. Joseph B. Bennett, a retired Brooklyn physician, seventy-three years of age, little suspected what a gay old Lothario he was until it came out a day or two ago that he was the defendant in a breach of promise case in which the damages were after the death of the late Mrs. Bennett in Pebruary last, she went to live at the doctor's house at 188 Columbia street, Brooklyn, where one of his married daugters was keep-ing house for him.

While she remained there, she says, the doctor was very attentive to her, and within a month after the death of his wife made a proposition of marriage to her. She objected to his advances, as being decidedly out of taste, considering the recent death of his wife, and leaving the house, went out into the country.

the house after her mother's death and remained there for some time to help her in the sewing.

But she did not know where she was living at the present time, and knew nothing of the offer of marriage which her father is said to have made to the widow.

"To tell the truth," she said, "she courted father, and not he her."

At the office of Charles J. Patterson, counsel for Dr. Bennett, it was said that the defendant was a retired hardward merchant, and not a physician at all, although the Brooklyn directory has had him down for several years as a physician, His daughter, however, confirmed the statement that he was a doctor, and said that he retired from his practice two years ago.

He is possessed of considerable property, which includes several houses in Brooklyn in the neighborhood of Columbia street, and its estimated to be worth $250,000 at least.

The doctor's family consists of five sons, four of whom are married, and two married daughters. The suit is brought in the Supreme Court of Brooklyn.

married son, gave orders for an elaborate wedding-gown, and asked that the day be fixed.

After two or three postponements on the doctor's part, she finally heard that he had suddenly married a lady of forty-five and had settled down at 527 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, without ever giving her notice of the change in his intentions with regard to herself. She forthwith began her suit for breach of promise through her lawyer, George Percy Howe, of this city.

Mrs. Griffith has a grown-up son and daughter, and is now living with the latter at 159 Penn street, Williamsburg. She is in very moderate circumstances and the expense to which she was put in preparing for her marriage with Dr. Hennett was a loss that she could not easily afford, to say nothing of the shock to her feelings caused by the heartless treachery of her quondam swain, whom she thought old enough to know better.

It is claimed by Dr. Bennett, who is now living with his new wife at 527 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, that the whole story of the plaintiff is bosh.

"I never promised to marry her," he said to a reporter who called upon him, "and the answer that I shall put in will throw a different iight upon the affair. I don't care what she says about me, and the suit don't bother me in the least."
